PA Health & Wellness and the Centene Foundation Announce Partnership with Habitat for Humanity

PA Health & Wellness (PHW) Safe & Sound Program to provide assistance with critical home repairs in Greater Harrisburg area

HARRISBURG (December 11, 2023) – PA Health & Wellness (PHW), a wholly owned subsidiary of Centene Corporation (NYSE: CNC), and Centene Foundation, the philanthropic arm of Centene Corporation, today announced its new partnership with Habitat for Humanity of the Greater Harrisburg Area to provide critical home repairs to area homeowners as part of the organization’s Critical Home Repair program. The new program – PHW Safe & Sound – will cover the cost of eligible interior and exterior structural, electrical, plumbing, HVAC and other critical home repairs so that eligible participants can remain in their homes. The program will focus on Dauphin County as well as Camp Hill, Wormleysburg and Lemoyne boroughs.

“Low-income homeowners can often face significant challenges with home repairs and improvements, said, Habitat for Humanity of the Greater Harrisburg Area Executive Director, Serina Gaston. “With limited financial resources, it’s often difficult for these homeowners to invest in maintenance, equipment and the most basic home improvements.”

As part of the Community HealthChoices managed care program, PA Health & Wellness supports home and community-based services for older Pennsylvanians and people with disabilities. Nearly 75,000 participants across the state are eligible for home modifications that improve home safety and help keep them in their homes as long as possible and support greater independence.

“Too often, when our health plan assesses a home prior to approving a modification, a safety or structural issue is identified that can prevent the work being done until corrected,” said PA Health & Wellness Plan President and CEO, Justin Davis. “We know that by addressing the critical link between healthcare and factors like housing, we can foster a healthier community. We hope that with the PHW Safe & Sound Program, we can overcome those issues and help people stay at home.”

Through the partnership with Habitat for Humanity and its Critical Home Repair Program, PA Health & Wellness now has a solution for needed reparation of roofs, windows, porches, railings, plumbing, and electrical components, thereby increasing safety, accessibility, condition, and livability of the home.

Habitat for Humanity Critical Home Repair Program

The Habitat for Humanity Critical Home Repair Program partners with homeowners to complete affordable interior and exterior home repairs and modifications that increase the safety, accessibility, condition and livability of the home. The Critical Home Repair program is designed to help keep low-income families in their existing home by making home repairs for which there is a need. The program addresses five key areas including safety, security, accessibility, Code violations, and energy efficiency.

To qualify, applicants must own and live in a home in Dauphin County, Camp Hill, Wormleysburg, or Lemoyne that needs repair. They must also meet certain income guidelines and other program requirements.

Community HealthChoices Home Modifications

To qualify for home modifications under the Community HealthChoices program, homeowners must first demonstrate that the home is structurally sound, and that any adaptation does not present a safety concern based on applicable state and local building codes. Often, things like poor wiring, plumbing issues or mold in the walls present that structural or safety concern.

In these cases, the health plan is forced to deny the modification until the necessary repairs can be made by the homeowner. This can be cost prohibitive for the homeowner or becomes stalled or denied due to the inability of the homeowner to satisfy the infrastructure repair requirements.

Participants must meet Community HealthChoices age and/or disability related requirements to be eligible for home modifications. Interested participants can contact PA Health & Wellness directly at 844-626-6813 or by reaching out to their Service Coordinator for more information.
