Policy Overview

A Robotic Surgical Device is a type of surgical technique or approach that is not required to ensure the successful outcome of the procedure. Therefore, separate reimbursement for surgeries that are performed using a robotic technique will not be considered for additional reimbursement. The type of instruments, technique, or approach used in a procedure is a matter of choice of the surgeon.

The purpose of this policy is to define payment criteria for robotic surgeries to be used in making payment decisions and administering benefits.

Application

- Physician and non-physician practitioners
- Institutional claims

Reimbursement

The health plan will disallow reimbursement for CPT S2900 – Surgical Techniques requiring the use of a robotic surgical system. This code is billed along with a primary surgical procedure code, and is an add-on code that denotes separate reimbursement for the robotic technique.

Utilization

The use of a robotic surgical device is a method of performing a surgical procedure and not a requirement of the procedure, nor one that ensures a more successful outcome than if a robotic approach had not been used.
